mers Become Bankers For A Night

unique experience was ded for the Adult Farmer at Pamplin last Thursday when each member of the became a banker. Jim Agriculture Services Of- for the Fidelity National was on hand to lead a dis- on "Financing the ing business." To encour- the class members to look edit in many of its facets, sented a problem to the and asked that each mem- ssume himself the loan for points of determination problem were: (1) to de- e what basic considera- should be covered in a loan alls, (2) to prepare a fi- l statement, (3) to estim- ome and expenses for the (4) to prepare a cash-flow e farm enterprises, (5) rmine type of loans to and (6) to secure the loan hedule repayments. sure was a good feeling to all that money for a few nts," is the way one mem- ber of the class felt about his experience in being a banker.

I would grade most farmers "A" on production management but a "C" on credit management," stated Mr. Nolen to the class. "It is good that as a group you are becoming more interested in the credit aspects of farming," remarked Nolen. The Fidelity officer also reminded the group that Capital is one of the limiting factors in the farming business at the present time. Efforts to improve this condition are being noticed by his bank as well as many other credit agencies available to farmers.

The Pamplin Adult Farmer Class meets each Thursday night at Pamplin for discussion of topics related to farming. A total of ten meetings is planned each year. The class is jointly sponsored by the Department of Agriculture Education at Appomattox County High School and the Pamplin Ruritan Club.

FHA Sees Skit

By: Debbie Rowe

The Appomattox Chapter Future Homemakers of America held their monthly meeting Thursday, February 18, featuring a skit recognizing early homemakers in America's past. Many of our chapter's members and officers participated. Realistic scenes and costumes were made available for and by the participants. The usual business of the meeting was conducted by the president, Margie Morris. Following the closing ritual, the meeting was adjourned.

Free Forest Tree Seedlings

Virginia landowners may still order free forest tree seedlings on a matching basis for reforesting idle and cutover land. If a landowner orders a thousand trees from the Virginia Division of Forestry, the company will furnish an additional thousand seedlings free of charge. Details can be obtained through any office of Westvaco Corporation, U.S. Soil Conservation, Extension Agent, Agricultural stabilization and conservation or Va. Division of Forestry or by writing Westvaco, Box 4075, Lynchburg, Va. 24502. More than 3 million trees have already been ordered through the program this year. The trees are offered north and west of the counties from Halifax to Powhatan to King George, and the trees are offered without obligation.

By means of this program, Westvaco helps improve timber, game, soil, water and aesthetic values of the state for all its citizens, and invites all private landowners to order the free trees.
